GRAND CENTRAL MARKET PRESENTS “GAME NIGHT”
Dinner, Drinks, Dominoes And More Every Thursday Until 9 PM

LOS ANGELES (July 23, 2014) – Grand Central Market is serving up a side of Trivial Pursuit with your tacos – starting Thursday, July 31, the historic DTLA food hub will host Game Night, featuring ping-pong, cornhole toss, Jenga and card and board games galore, every Thursday until 9 p.m.

Along with the games previously mentioned, dinner goers can play classics like Scrabble and Uno or challenge friends to newer fare like Settlers of Catan and Cards Against Humanity, and do so over dinner from participating late hours vendors and drinks from Belcampo Meat Co., Horse Thief BBQ and Olio GCM Wood Fired Pizzeria.

“People line up at the Market for lunch every day – why not stop by after work and unwind?” said Christophe Farber, the Market’s Director of Business Development. “Whether this means a friendly match of ping-pong or a friendship-destroying round of Jenga over beers, Game Night is perfect for keeping your social circle going between the 9-to-5 and DTLA’s club and bar scene.”

To celebrate its opening and the launch of Game Night, McConnell’s Fine Ice Creams – the Market’s newest vendor -- will serve up free scoops of its hand-crafted flavors from 7 – 9 p.m. on July 31.

Grand Central Market is open until 9 p.m. every Thursday through Saturday, and will be offering more special late hours programming for visitors and residents of DTLA alike.

Celebrating the cuisines and cultures of Los Angeles since 1917, the historic Grand Central Market food arcade (between Broadway and Hill Street at the base of Angels Flight) is an unparalleled eating and shopping experience showcasing the best local chefs, culinary purveyors and entrepreneurs.
